CONWELL, BAIN, HALL

Are the Names of Three Great Lecturers

WHO WILL BE IN THE COURSE

Of the Young Men's Christian Association This Winter—Doctor Crawford, the Shubert Male Quartet, and a Concert of Our Own People Will Make the Best Series of Entertainments Ever Held in Town.

The committee of the Young Men's Christian association, having in charge the preparation of a lecture course, decided last night upon attractions which will make the best series of entertainments ever enjoyed by progressive people in this city.

The agents were there according to promise, and when it became known that they wanted to offer it did not require a long session to determine on the requirements of East Liverpool audiences. There was a disposition to give six concerts instead of the customary five for a dollar, and so strong did it become that the committee entertained and passed a motion creating that number. Then the applications for dates were carefully revised, and Colonel Bain decided upon as indispensable for a season of enjoyment. Wellsville had notified the committee that he would be brought there if he was not secured for this city, and there being a strong sentiment in his favor here he was chosen. Russell Conwell was another upon whom there was no argument. The great lecturer is one of the most expensive orators on the American platform, but he is worth every cent they pay him. As a talker he is unexcelled, and his versatility is a feature which has made him renowned. A keen humorist and of pleasant appearance he will be the great attraction of the course. Arrangements are being made to have him give the first entertainment, and it is thought that some date in October or November will suit all concerned. Another entertainment which will attract universal attention will be the concert of the Shubert Male quartet, who have been singing together for 15 years. They are as good as any in their branch, and in other places never fail to attract large crowds. Their engagements in the larger cities are always very well attended, and they are not strangers by any means to many persons in the city. Doctor Crawford, president of the seminary at Allegheny, has also been secured for the course. He is known personally to parties here, and they say no better selection could have been made. Henry Hall, the journalist, will please all who hear him. He is the Washington correspondent for a Pittsburg paper, and has done much special work for other journals in different parts of the country. His extensive travels have given him a world of information, and he possesses the power and ability to put it graphically before his hearers. A great store of amusing anecdotes form one of the most pleasant features of his lecture, while his wonderful descriptive powers tend to make him one of the most entertaining gentlemen on the platform. He is known to some people in the city and a great many in Wellsville. During the holidays will be given what is expected to be the star attraction. It will be a concert by the people of the city. All the best musical and literary talent in town will be enlisted, and everybody knows what an excellent entertainment that always means. During the evening many laughable and pleasant features will be presented for the edification and enjoyment of the audience. It will undoubtedly be the greatest concert ever given in the city.

To present this excellent course and make it a success the Young Men's Christian association must have the support of at least 500 persons at the rate of $1 for each ticket, giving each entertainment at a wonderfully low rate. Reserved seats will be sold as in former years, and canvassers will be put out as soon as possible. While it has not yet been decided where the entertainments will be held the First Presbyterian church will likely be sought, owing to its seating capacity, and its construction. Chairman E. M. Crosser and the committee deserve great credit for their efforts to secure a good course.

John L. Bryde, of Baltimore, is a man who believes that where there is a will there is a way and with that adage in mind he is traveling toward Seattle, Wash. Last night he arrived on the 7 o'clock train from Rochester, and attracted considerable attention having a wooden leg and being blind in one eye. He was thinly clad, although not in rags, as he had managed to pick up some clothing on the way, and carried a paper signed by two business men of Baltimore for whom he had worked and who gave him such contributions as they could afford. He had hard luck in Rochester, as few seemed to believe his story, but he fared better here, getting enough to buy a ticket to Alliance and a few free lunches beside. Bryde claims to be going to his father, who is dangerously ill in Seattle, and being an old man will hardly recover. He goes as far as he can on the money he gets and begs for more. He left here on the midnight train.

NO MORE TARIFF.

The Murphy Resolution to Adjourn Passes the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—After one of the most remarkable sessions in the history of congress the senate decided this afternoon to drop tariff and go home. The Murphy resolution was the cause of it all, and when it was presented today it went through without any trimming in the way of tears. The vote was 29 for the resolution and 16 against it. This means no relief for the potters for several months.

A jollier set of people than the gentlemen who were in the city representing their firms at the bond sale yesterday afternoon would have been hard to find. Among the number were A. W. Howard, representing N. W. Harris & Co., Chicago; L. W. Prier, of Deltz, Dennison & Prier, Cleveland; W. L. Phelps, of Spitzer & Co., Toledo; W. S. Hayden, of the Lamprecht Brothers company, Cleveland; J. R. Long, of Cincinnati; James B. Steedson, representing Z. T. Lewis, Dayton; S. F. Mason, of Mason, Lewis & Co., Chicago. Mr. Howard handed in the lucky bid, although he was somewhat uneasy about the bid of E. H. Gay & Co., of Boston, which came in by telegraph. The closest bid to that of Harris & Co., which was $2,001.50, was one by Deltz, Dennison & Prier, $1,927, and Rudolph Kleybolte & Co.'s of $1,921. Messrs. Prier and Long, their representatives, took their defeat good naturedly, as did the balance of the party, who spent the time at the city hall pleasantly. The premium paid for the bonds is about the best ever given here and is considered an excellent sum, one which council thinks satisfactory.

That journalistic misrepresentation known as the Weakly Tribune says in its alleged editorial this week that council is paying more for its printing than it did last year. Of course the silly vaporizing amounts to nothing more than additional proof that the Tribune should attend a kindergarten and take a few lessons in mathematics, or do itself justice and not let that small portion of the public reading the sheet realize what little it knows, not only of journalism but arithmetic. The truth is that the city is paying 25 per cent less for its printing than it did a year ago. Even then the amount given the weakly was as much as thrown away for no one reads a paper which can be secured for the asking. Some day the poor innocent will learn how silly it is.

This county was represented in a small way at the Populist convention in Columbus this week, and although our Coxey friends did not flame and blaze in the bright light shed by such men as Allen Cook and John McBride, they contrived to make Charles Bonnell, the Salem man, a member of the committee on resolutions, and give A. C. Vandyke a place among the creators of permanent organization. When the platform was adopted Bonnell succeeded in having Coxey's famous bill added to the already picturesque document.

The holiness campmeeting at Hollow Rock is attracting many persons from this city, although the attendance is not large. Several families have cottages, and are enjoying the outing and services very much. A number of converts to holiness have already been made. Many persons will drive from here tomorrow.

Miss Gertie Purinton pleasantly entertained a party of young friends at her home on Elm street last night. Vocal and instrumental music enlivened the occasion, and an elegant lunch was enjoyed by the guests.

ANOTHER FAIR TRIAL

One More Examination of Teachers

FIRST MONDAY IN SEPTEMBER

Will See the Youngsters Hastening to School Bright and Early—Only Two Changes in the Teachers—No New Rooms—Progress of the Central High School Building.

As the days for the opening of the public schools draw near, the question of who will be the teachers continues to agitate those most interested, and the outcome of the special examination to be held next week is eagerly awaited.

It will be remembered that the examination held in the Sixth street school building several months ago resulted disastrously for a number of the applicants, in fact the majority present failed to pass the rigid questioning with grades equal to the occasion, and the demands of the examining board. The result was a surprise to a great many persons who knew the qualifications of the young ladies seeking permission to teach, and no one was surprised when Professor Sanor made the announcement that another examination would be held, and all who failed to go through the first with colors flying would be given an opportunity to try it again. This course was adapted because the young ladies had, during the long school year, neglected to keep pace with memory and had grown rusty in many branches which are not used in primary and intermediate work. They have had a summer for study, and it is expected that there will be no failures the next time. Professor Sanor has been out of town for some time enjoying vacation days, but he will be home next week, and be present at the test, which will be held in the Sixth street building, and on next Friday.

Preparations are being made for the opening of the school year, which takes place bright and early on the first Monday in September, and will continue as others have before it. There will be no change in the corps of teachers with the exception of two, and the rooms will be located as before. It is thought that there will be sufficient space for all the youngsters in the buildings occupied last year, and as far as is known at present no additional expense will be incurred by the renting of new quarters for any of the schools. The census taken some time ago shows that there will be new scholars in school. Some have reached the age when the law compels them to a certain number of weeks every year. Others have moved in, and some who have been away will be there when the bell taps for order. So many families have returned to the city since the potteries started that there can be little doubt of an increase over the number of children reported by the census when school is once well started, and the truant officer begins search for the missing.

Precautions will also be taken so that the children will not be compelled to lose any time or suffer inconvenience because of the cold, as was true in more than one instance last year. Because of the nature of the rooms, and the fact that they were not intended for the use of any school, there were instances when a noticeable scarcity of heat made it uncomfortable for teachers and scholars alike, although it was no fault of the board as that body was compelled to take what it could get so long as the buildings were located where they could be reached by the children. Last year was the first under the new order, and learning from experience there are defects which can be remedied, and the schools started under such favorable circumstances as to give the youngsters every possible advantage on the road which leads to a good education. If they do not learn it will not be the cause of any drawback that can be prevented.

Meantime the new Central high school is climbing skyward at a rate which can not but be satisfactory, and the beauties of the building are becoming more noticeable every day. The first story is rapidly being completed; that is great progress is being done with the brick and stone work.

The great arch which will form the main entrance is being made, and shows up to splendid advantage. Not a whit less handsome are the stone trimmings which cover the building with a firm, substantial appearance, and convince the observer that the structure will last as long as there are children in Liverpool to study within its walls. A hoisting engine was placed in position today, and will soon be sending the heavier material to workmen on the second story. The Fourth and Union street front presents a splendid appearance, and people are constantly noting the progress of the work. If the city was in good financial condition, and times were not in the Democratic net, popular subscription would soon buy a clock for the tower. As there is no town clock of any kind in the city, the addition of one to the school building would not only improve the appearance of the tower, but would add largely to the convenience of citizens.

COUNTY COURTS.

An Interesting Budget of News From New Lisbon.

New Lisbon, Aug. 17.—An action asking for partition of 40 acres of land in Salem township was filed today by Charles U. Schmick, of Leetonia, who owns a one-fourth interest in the land. Jacob Kersh, of Leetonia, Phillip H. Kersh, of Columbia City, Ind., and Henry and John Barthomey, of Chicago, are tenants in common with him, each having a one-fourth interest. Since 1890, he states, the property has been in the possession of Jacob Kersh, and they want the court to compel him to order an account of the rents and profits until partition can be made.

Licenses were obtained at the probate court this morning for the marriage of the following parties: Charles Kaufman and Catharine Cassidy, C. V. Reeder and Emeline S. Belat, Virgil Slater and Jessie Ethel Guy.

Fun For Outlookers.

A certain woman in a downtown restaurant has been on a continual jag for over a week, and some of the happenings when she is around are amusing. Yesterday she got into a fight with a resident of that thoroughfare and tore his shirt to shreds. He caught her by the throat and prevented further trouble by gently shutting off her breath for a few moments. This morning a well known attorney was standing on the platform at the Cleveland & Pittsburg depot when she spied him and broke forth with a tirade of abusive language much to the amusement of the on-lookers and the discomfiture of the legal gentleman who took no part in the affair other than that of the victim, and hurriedly made his escape from the scene.

Found the Purse.

An uptown business man who is somewhat absent minded created considerable excitement and anxiety among his clerks last night when he announced that his bill book, with over $200 in it, was missing. Every nook and corner was searched and the merchant hunted with the rest of them greatly worried at the supposed loss or theft of the cash. One of the clerks sat idly by and took a hearty laugh, however, as he noticed the book in the merchant's hand. He had picked it up from the desk and forgotten all about it. The merchant blushed like a school girl when he discovered his mistake, and it is said that the entire force took soda water at his expense.

Still They Go Free.

The owners of savage dogs allow them to run around unmuzzled just like the canines of a milder temperament and an illustration of the danger of so doing was shown last night. A ferocious dog sprang upon a small boy near the corner of Fourth and Washington streets and caught his teeth in the lad's coat. It was hanging on and trying to get hold of his throat when pedestrians beat the animal off, and one man administered a few well deserved kicks to the beast. The boy's coat sleeve was torn to shreds.

The Children's Home.

Dr. L. O. Williams took the four children of the Barcus family to the Fairmont Children's home this week. The youngsters are aged from 5 to 10 years, and their father died a few months ago at his home in West End. The doctor states that the home is apparently in fine condition and the children present a neat and attractive appearance. There is not a single case of sickness in the entire institution, and the children seem perfectly contented in their orphan quarters.

In Bad Condition.

The number of farmers in the city today was large and all had the same report about the condition of crops throughout the country. Only in the bottom land or ravines is corn doing any good. The corn crop is past redemption now and the farmers continue to cut it for fodder. Oats and other cereals are not so bad, wheat being the best crop, but even it is not much. Everything is burned up by the drought, and the farmers have lost all hope of rain.

IS FRANK KING LOST?

He Came Here to Look for Work in a Pottery.

HAS NOT BEEN SEEN FOR A WEEK

His Friends Near New Lisbon are Anxious to Know What Has Become of Him. He is but 17 Years Old, and When Last Seen Wore a Straw Hat.

Frank King is the name of a boy who came here from a farm one week ago, and has not been seen by his friends since last Monday.

His parents live on a farm south of New Lisbon, and growing weary of life there he decided to take his chances out in the world. This being a place noted throughout this section as being a town where almost anyone can secure employment he decided that it was the city in which to begin the battle. Last Saturday he came here and going to the house of his cousin, U. G. King, Fourth street, he made some inquiries regarding where he could get work. Monday morning he set out in search of employment declaring his intention of making the attempt at Brunt's pottery, as it had been recommended to him. Not returning that day the relatives thought he had been unable to secure work, and becoming disgusted with his first experience had gone back to the farm where there is always work to do. Great was his surprise when this morning he received a telephone message from New Lisbon inquiring after Frank. The person at the other end of the line was the boy's mother, and she had not seen him since he left home, naturally thinking that he was here. Inquiry at Brunt's developed that he did not work there, nor as far as they knew had any one of that name applied there for work. His friends have not the slightest idea where he is.

Bits From Spring Grove.

Rev. S. B. Solmen treated the subject of Christian fortitude in an able manner yesterday morning. He will preach at Doctor Huston's church tomorrow.

Reverend Harrison had an excellent sermon on the farewell of Moses.

Professor Alexander, the new president of Beaver college, was in camp yesterday the guest of Doctor Bart. He likes the place, and did not hesitate to say so.

Mrs. Harrison and Miss Vandewater were in Liverpool, Friday, seeing the sights of the crockery town. They were well pleased with what the saw. Miss Vandewater is a lady of wealth, and enjoys traveling with Mrs. Harrison and her son.

The nights are getting cold at Spring Grove, but you hear no objection because of the low temperature.

The Liverpool people are continually devising some means whereby they can enjoy themselves.

A Good Thing For Them.

CARLSBAD, August 16.—There is great rejoicing among the Saxony wooten and Bohemian porcelain factories over the passage of the tariff bill in America. C. W. PACK.

Contract Soon to Be Let.

Attorney McDonald and his bridge associates are reticent regarding the time when work will begin on the structure, but the presence of numerous bridge men from different parts of the country the past few days prompts the belief that the move is not far away. The delay is caused by the difficulty in obtaining prompt answers from prospective bidders, as they are all anxious to know how the tariff is going to treat iron before they move.

Home From Toledo.

Emmett Crites and wife returned last night from Toledo where Mr. Crites has been attending the state convention of the Maccabees. The meeting was one of the greatest in the history of the organization, and a meeting of Maccabees will be held in their hall tonight so they can hear all about it.

To Work Here Again.

Ben Gregg, the street railway motor-man, who worked for a long time on the electric street railway here, has returned to resume work in his former position. He will go on the line again Monday. During his absence Mr. Gregg has been employed on the line at Bellevue.

The NEWS REVIEW never disarpoints you when you want the news.

ORANGES, sugar and peanuts are heavily protected in the new tariff law because they are southern products.

WILSON's friends will move every source of influence to have him return to congress this fall. It is a good thing for Wilson's chances that he does not live in the Eighteenth district, for like another congressman, we know he could not be elected dog pelter.

In view of the fact that Wilson and his ways and means friends have been whipped out of their boots, it remains for Cleveland to appoint each faithful ally to some fat office where he can console himself in the knowledge that those who are faithful to the president, even though it requires deeply lacer-ated feelings, can always find a golden ointment.

DOCTOR LEWIS, John McBride, J. S.
Coxey, and any other of the so-called labor leaders who hope to slip into office because the Democratic party is divided against itself on the tariff question, have made a fatal error by selecting this year. Now the friends of America are rallying around the cause of protection and propose to let Cleveland know that "his congress" will soon be a thing of the past.

It is the program at the coming county Democratic convention to pass over national affairs as lightly as possible, and go at that awful "court house ring" without gloves. What the faithful expect in return for the epithets they will heap upon Treasurer Martin, Auditor Harvey, Judge Young and any other county official no one seems to know, but the leaders may be able to tell how anxiously they are waiting to get their hands into the county treasury.

THE RIGHT PRINCIPLE.
Abraham Lincoln did not pretend like Papa Wilson, to be learned in political economy, but he once said that "when an American paid $20 for steel to an English manufacturer, America had the steel and England had the $20. But when he paid $20 for steel to an American manufacturer, America had both the steel and the $20."

That is the principle which the Republican party has ever upheld and sustained, and is the principle upon which every political battle will be fought in this country until the American workman and manufacturer, as well as the general public can secure thorough judicious legislation, the protection which will make Americans the most prosperous people in the world. All Europe is laughing now because the Democrats gave them the advantage contained in the new law, but the laugh will be on our side if the people vote at coming elections as the Cleveland experiment has taught them. Other issues will appear and new questions will arise, but the tariff will stand permanent until some adjustment, not dictated by trusts and arranged for the personal benefit of interested senators or other public officials, will have been reached.
The new tariff contains too much evil, too many inconsistencies to live one minute longer than the time when a Republican administration can consign it to oblivion.

TARIFF BILL'S EFFECT.

Bradstreet Secures Interviews With Business Men.

THERE IS UNIFORM SATISFACTION
In Southern, Central and Northwestern States—Manufacturers Will Reduce Wages—Don's Review Says the Bill Provides a Definite Basis For Business.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Bradstreet's Review today says: Special telegraphic and mail advices summarizing interviews with more than 500 leading wholesale dealers and manufacturers at 47 cities throughout the country as to the present effect, if any, of the prospective tariff settlement and the outlook as to the effect of the senate tariff bill, should it become a law, indicate relatively less enthusiasm at larger eastern centers, except at New York and Baltimore, almost uniform satisfaction throughout the southern states, and similar advices from the central and northwestern states except where serious crop damage has taken place. In the far west little interest is manifested in tariff agitation, notably at Denver and Helena where silver attracts more attention. Portland fears the result of the reduction of the tariff on lumber, but at San Francisco an improvement in demand is expected and considerable freight is offered for shipment to China.

A feature is found in declarations from manufacturers of woolen goods, glassware, pottery and iron and steel at various centers of production that wages will promptly be reduced. Cotton merchants declare settlement of the tariff comes too late to help them this fall and lumber dealers speak regretfully of the reduction of duty in their line.
Aside from probable improvement due to ending uncertainty in business, at Boston, Providence, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Newark or Rochester merchants interviewed express noteworthy enthusiasm as to the trade prospect. The proposed change in the sugar schedule exerts material depression in Louisiana.

R. G. Don & Co.'s Weekly Review of trade, issued today, says: The new tariff bill, if signed by the president as expected, provides a definite basis for business. No supplemental legislation is thought possible until next year at least. Large improvement has been expected from any settlement, the more because of a vast amount of business deferred from week to week in the hope of more definite conditions. The rush of such business, or even a part of it, might easily double transactions for a time. It is not to be overlooked that the effect of new duties upon many branches of industry and trade is problematical and may be determined only after some months of experience, and meanwhile the serious injury to corn and some other conditions exercise a restrain-ing influence.

It is too early to look for effects of the new situation in the great industries, but the gradual recovery which has appeared for some time is seen in a better demand for products.
Warning to Campaign Speakers
INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 18.—William Stanley, a farmer of Pendleton, Ind., is preparing to sue Congressman Bynum of Indiana for $1,500. During the last presidential campaign Stanley heard Mr. Bynum deliver a speech in which he said that if the Democratic party was successful wheat would be worth $1.25 per bushel. Stanley went home and sowed wheat extensively and raised a crop of 2,000 bushels. This he declares he has been compelled to sell at different prices between 40 and 50 cents per bushel. He will sue the congressman for the difference.

A Riot Over Religion.
BELFAST, Aug. 18.—The celebration of the feast of the Assumption has been made the occasion for a series of riotous demonstrations in this city. The Dissenters were beaten by a mob of Nationalists, who first attacked and beat a party of Protestants and then vented their wrath upon protestant property.
The extensive linen factory of Mather & Bunting was almost wrecked.

Ravages of the Lightning.
SHAMOKIN, Pa., Aug. 18.—Lightning struck the big brick barn owned by Henry Dunkelberger of Mahanogony Valley and the entire structure was burned to the ground together with all of this season's crops. Loss, $3,000; insurance, $1,000. The Evangelical church at Trevorton was also struck during the same storm.

Will Burn Soft Coal.
TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 18.—The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company will change all their Class E, F and H locomotives, better known as narrow firebox engines, to burn bituminous coal.
These engines are now burning hard coal, which costs about $2.40 per ton, while the soft coal is worth about 90

Kerens, the Missouri member of the said, of consulting with members of the national committee as to the best mode of casting the A. P. A. adrift.

issued by the secretary of war the three great army recruiting depots at David's

HUNTING CHINESE VESSELS.

The Jap Fleet Wants to Engage in a Naval Battle.

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 18.—It is officially stated that the Japanese fleet, which consists of 17 vessels, is hunting for the Chinese fleet with the purpose of engaging it in battle.

The Japanese troops in Korea have been ordered to occupy all the passes on the China-Korean frontier and prevent at all hazards the entry into Korea of Chinese reinforcements.
Torpedoes will be laid at the entrance of the Tokyo and Nagasaki harbors early next week.

THE TALENT HAPPY.

Favorites Win In Each Event on the Rochester Track.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 18.—The closing day of the Grand Circuit meeting here was one which made the talent happy, for favorites won in each of the events.

Great expectations were laid on the free-for-all pace. Will Kerr acted badly and was distanced in the first heat. Hal Bradley, the favorite, lowered his record three-fourths of a second in the very first heat and had a cinch on first money, leaving Mascot and Guy to fight for second money. The old gray made a hard tussle and finished second in the last heat. The time was the fastest race time made during the week, Carlodon's 2:10 1/4 standing since the first day.

world records were made at the Terre Haute track today. The Baron Wilkes' record of 2:08 1/4 in the 2 1/2 mile race was broken by the world's record made by Boreal on Monday of 1 1/4 miles. In the free-for-all race Sweet Little Ann finished well within herself in 2:06, the third quarter being done in a with 10,000 spectators, delightful weather and

GAMES PLAYED YESTERDAY.
The Giants Defeat the Browns by a Close Shave—Other Games.
NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Gotham's gilt-edged Giants defeated Vonder Ahe's Browns by a whisper at the Polo grounds. The Browns were commanding lead at the start, but were overtaken in the third and from this time until the ninth inning it was nip and

An Exciting Contest.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The Washington and Cleveland clubs played a postponed game and the latter won after an exciting contest.
The Senators took aivan age of Petty's wildness in the seventh and from the start, but were overtaken in the third and from this time until the ninth inning it was nip and tuck. Ward's playing was the feature. At-

Highest Score of the Season.
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18.—The Phillies beat the record for the highest score of the season

VACANCY BLOCKS IT.

Republicans Demand a New Committeeman Named

BEFORE ACTION ON HOUSE BILLS.

White's Appointment Hangs Fire in the Senate—Murphy Offers a Resolution to Prevent Further Tariff Legislation.
The Republican Caucus.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Further tariff legislation is still blocked by the vacancy on the senate finance committee. Republican members of the committee refuse to allow any consideration of the house free bills until the vacancy is filled, as they will not take the responsibility of reporting these bills. Republican members say that if the Democrats desire to have them reported they must do it with their majority; that the Republicans have four members of the finance committee here, and as the Democrats have but the same number the former do not propose to have the Democratic four counted as five.

The senate held a brief but interesting session which was largely devoted to discussing the proposed appointment of Mr. White (Cal.) to the vacancy on the finance committee. During the course of the debate Mr. Hill delivered a tariff speech and incidentally entered a plea for the calling of a caucus to consider the appointment so that the state of New York might have some voice in a selection in which it was virtually interested. The resolution, however, went over without action.

A resolution was then presented by Mr. Murphy (Dem., N. Y.), which, being objected to, went over without action.
It declares that in view of the statement contained in Secretary Carlisle's letter that the estimated surplus revenues for the year would not exceed $15,000,000, it is the sense of the senate that no further tariff legislation should be attempted at this session.

Mr. Gray offered an amendment, which went over, directing the finance committee to make a prompt report on the house free sugar bill, but offering an amendment for a revenue duty and no differential duty to refiners.

The house bill to repeal so much of the revenue act as relates to the tax on imports from taxation alcohol used in the arts and manufactures was received and referred to the committee on finance.

The Republican caucus decided not to interfere with the Democrats in filling the vacancy on the finance committee.
Some of the Republican senators present expressed the opinion that in view of the position taken by Senator Hill on the appointment to fill the finance committee vacancy it would be a proper return for the Republican senators to support any resolution that he may offer in regard to the appointment, thinking it probable that he might desire to substitute the name of some other senator for that of Mr. White. When Mr. Hill was apprised of this action he said he should not attempt to submit some one else because he had no personal objection to Mr. White. Republican senators express the opinion that the Murphy resolution, amended as they are willing to accept it, will pass by a majority of 10 or 15. The resolution will probably be so amended as to strike out all reference to Secretary Carlisle's letter and to put the reason for no further legislation on the ground that there is no practical objection to the original resolution has it, that none is desirable. Prominent conservative Democratic senators were appraised after the caucus adjourned of its action and it is understood that they acquiesce in the proposed modifications of the Murphy resolution.

Mrs. Cleveland Talks.
BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 18.— President Cleveland has arrived here safely. Mrs. Cleveland courteously received her representative when he arrived. She said that the president had improved in health and was feeling quite well. He was, however, rather tired and he had laid down for a short time. He could see no one and would not be interviewed. Mrs. Cleveland said that she had talked to the president but little and could not tell what his plans were. He would remain at home but a few days, however, as important business would compel his return to Washington.

Government Expenditures.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Chairman Sayers of the house committee on appropriations has completed an official statement of the amount appropriated by the session of congress just closing as compared with past sessions. The statement represents the views of the Democratic majority in the committee, instead of as the original resolution has it, that none is desirable. Prominent conservative Democratic senators were appraised
after the caucus adjourned of its action
and it is understood that they acquiesce
in the proposed modifications of the Murphy resolution.

ALTOONA, Pa., Aug. 18.—No cause is known for the suicide of Bank Exam-had just completed the examination of the affairs of the bank and submitted the result to Washington. He had a letter in his pocket addressed to Comptroller Eckles at Washington saying that the directors of the Second National bank were very anxious to resume business and asked permission to furnish them a statement of the bank's condition. He also asked for information as to the requirements to be complied with prior to resumption, and paid a high compliment to the integrity of the directors of the institution. The inquest was postponed until today at the instance of the United States district attorney, who was to be present. Acting

FROM THE RANKS.

BY CAPT. CHARLES KING.

COPYRIGHT 1894 BY THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT CO.

CHAPTER XI.

Nature never vouchsafed to weary a soldier a lovelier day of rest than the still Sunday on which Frank Armistage rode slowly back from the station. The soft, yellow tone of the church bell, tolling the summons for morning service, floated out from the brown tower and was echoed back from the rocky cliff glistening in the August sunshine on the northern bluff. Groups of villagers hung about the steps of the little sanctuary and gazed with mild curiosity at the arriving parties from the cottages and the station. The big red omnibus came up with a load of worshippers, and farther away could see others on foot and in carriages all wending their way to church. He was in no mood to meet them. The story that he had been out pursuing a stray during the night was pretty thoroughly circulated by this time, he felt assured, and every one would connect his early ride to the station, in some way with the adventure that had taken place in the stage with them.

He reined up his horse, and then, seeing a little pathway leading into the thick wood to his right, he turned in either and followed it some 50 yards among bordering treasures of coriopsis and goldenrod and wild luxuriance of vine and foliage. Dismounting in the shade, he threw the reins over his arm and let his horse crop the juicy grasses, while he seated himself on a little stump and fell to thinking again. He could hear the reverent voices of one or two visitors strolling about among the peaceful, flower-decked graves behind the little church and only a short stone's throw away through the shrubbery. He could hear the low solemn voluntary of the organ and presently the glad outburst of young voices in the opening hymn, but he knew that belated ones could still be coming to church, and he could not come forth from his covert until all were out of the way. Then, as he was glad of a little longer time to think. He did not want to tell the result of his morning investigations.

To begin with, the watchman, the driver and the two men whom he had questioned were all of an opinion as to the character of the stranger—"he was a military man." The passengers described his voice as that of a man of education and social position; the driver and passengers declared his walk and carriage to be that of a soldier. He was taller, they said, than the tall, stalwart Saxon captain, but by no means so built. As to age, they could not tell. His beard was black and curly, not gray hairs. His movements were quick and elastic, but his eyes were hidden by those colored glasses, and his forehead by the slouch of that broadrimmed felt hat.

At the station, while awaiting the answer to his dispatch, Armistage had questioned the agent as to whether any man of that description had arrived by the night train from the north. He had been none, he said, but there was Larsen over at the postoffice store, who came down on that train. Perhaps he could tell. Oddly enough, Mr. Larsen recalled just such a party—tall, slim, dark dark bearded, with blue glasses and dark hat and clothes—but he was bound for Lakeville, the station beyond, and he remained in the car when he and Larsen got off. Larsen remembered the man well, because he sat in the rear of the smoker and had nothing to say to anybody, but kept reading a newspaper, and the way he came to take notice of him was that while standing by two friends at that end of the car it happened to be right around the corner. The Saturday evening train from the city is always crowded with people from the river towns who have been up to market or the matinees, and even the car was filled with standing men. Larsen got some 30 miles down. Larsen wanted to light a fresh cigar and went one to each of his friends. Then he found they had no matches, and one of them, who had been drinking a mug and felt jovial, turned to the dark stranger and asked him for a light, and the man, without speaking, handed out a little silver matchbox. It was just as the conductor came along, and Larsen saw his ticket. It was a "round trip" to Lakeville. He was evidently going there for a visit, and therefore, Larsen, he didn't get off at Sablon bluff, which was six miles above.

But Armistage knew better. It was evident that he had quietly slipped out of the platform of the car after the regular passengers had got out of the way and let himself off into the darkness on the side opposite the station. Thence he had an open, unimpeded walk of a hundred yards until he reached the omnibus, and then, when overtaken by the omnibus, he could jump aboard and ride. There was only one road, and only one way over to the hotel, and he did not miss it. There was no doubt that whoever he was, the night before had come down on the evening train from the city, and his return ticket would indicate that he meant to go back the way he came. It was half past 10 when the train arrived. It was nearly midnight when the man appeared at the stage window. It was after 3 when Armistage gave up the search and went to bed. It was possible for the man to have walked to Lakeville, six miles south, and reached the station there in abundant time to take the up train which passed Sablon, without stopping, a little before daybreak. If he took that train, and if he was Jerrold, he would have been in the city before 7 and could have been at Fort Sibley before or by 8 o'clock. But Chester's dispatch showed clearly that at 8:30—the hour for signing the company morning report—Mr. Jerrold was not at his post. Was he still in the neighborhood and waiting for the noon train? If so, could he be confronted on the cars and accused of his crime? He looked at his watch. It was nearly 11, and he must push on to the hotel before that hour, report to the colonel, then hasten back to the station. He sprang to his feet and was just about to mount when a vision of white and scarlet came suddenly into view. There, within 20 feet of him, making her dainty way through the shrubbery from the direction of the church, sunshine and shadow alternately fitting across her lovely face and form, Alice Renwick stepped forth into the pathway, and shading her eyes with her hand gazed along the leafy lane toward the road, as though expectant of another's coming. Then, attracted by the beauty of the goldenrod, she bent and busied herself with gathering in the yellow sprays. Armistage, with one foot in the stirrup, stood stock still, half in surprise, half stunned by a sudden and painful thought. Could it be that she was there in hopes of meeting—any one?

He retook his foot from the stirrup, and relaxing the rein still stood gazing at her over his horse's back. That little quadruped, whose years had been spent in these pleasant byways and were too many to warrant an exhibition of coltish surprise, promptly lowered his head and resumed his occupation of grass nibbling, making a little crunching noise which Miss Renwick might have heard, but apparently did not. She was singing very softly to herself:

"Daisy, tell my fortune, pray, He loves me, not—he loves me."

And still Armistage stood and gazed, while she, absorbed in her pleasant task, still pulled and plucked at the goldenrod. In all his life no "vision of fair women" had been to him so fair and sacred and exquisite as this. Down to the tip of her arched and slender foot, peeping from beneath the brodered hem of her snowy skirt, she stood the lady born and bred, and his eyes looked on and worshiped her—worshiped, yet questioned, Why came she here? Absorbed, he released his hold on the rein, and Dobbin, nothing loath, reached with his long, lean neck for farther herbage and stepped in among the trees. Still stood his negligent master, fascinated in his study of the lovely, graceful girl. Again she raised her head and looked northward along the winding, shaded wood path. A few yards away were other great clusters of the wild flowers she loved, more sun kissed goldenrod, and, with a little murmur of delight, gathering her dainty skirts in one hand, she flitted up the pathway like an unconscious humming bird garnering the sweets from every blossom. A little farther on the pathway bent among the trees, and she would be hidden from his sight, but still he stood and studied her every movement, drank in the soft, cooing melody of her voice as she sang, and then there came a sweet, solemn strain from the brown, sunlit walls just visible through the trees, and reverent voices and the resonant chords of the organ thrilled through the listening woods the glorious anthem of the church militant.

At the first notes she lifted up her queenly head and stood, listening and appreciative. Then he saw her rounded throat swelling like a bird's, and the rich, full tones of her voice rang out through the welcoming sunshine, and the fluttering wrens, and red breasted robins, and rival song queens, the brown winged thrushes—even the impudent shrieking jays—seemed to hush and listen. Dobbin, fairly astonished, lifted up his hollow eye head and looked amazedly at the white songstress whose scarlet sash and neck ribbons gleamed in such vivid contrast to the foliage about her. A wondering little "cotton-tail" rabbit, shy and wild as a hawk, came darting through the bushes into the sunshiny patchwork on the path, and then, uplifted and with quivering ears and nostrils and wide staring eyes, stood paralyzed with helpless amazement, ignoring the tall man in gray as did the singing herself. Richer, rounder, fuller grew the melody as, abandoning herself to the impulse of the sacred hour, she joined with all her girlish heart in the words of praise and thanksgiving—in the glad and triumphant chorus of the Te Deum. From beginning to end she sang, now ringing and exultant, now soft and plaintive, following the solemn words of the ritual—sweet and low and suppliant in the petition, "We therefore pray thee help thy servants whom thou hast redeemed with thy precious blood," confident and exulting in the declaration, "Thou art the king of glory, O Christ!" and then rich with fearless trust and faith in the thrilling climax, "Let me never be confounded." Armistage listened as one in a trance. From the depth of her heart the girl had joined her glorious voice to the chorus of praise and adoration, and now that all was stilled once more her head had fallen forward on her bosom; her hands, laden with goldenrod, were joined together. It seemed as though she were lost in prayer.

And this was the girl, this the pure, God worshipping, God fearing woman, who for one black instant he had dared to fancy had come here expectant of a meeting with the man whose aim had been frustrated but the night before! He could have thrown himself at her feet and implored her pardon. He did step forth, and then, hat in hand, baring his proud Saxon head as his forefathers Armistage listened as one in a trance, would have uncovered to their monarch, he waited until she lifted up her eyes and saw him and knew by the look in his frank face that he had stood by, a mute listener to her unstudied devotion. A lovely flush rose to her very temples, and her eyes drooped their pallid lids until the long lashes swept the crimson of her cheeks.

"Have you been here, captain? I never saw you," was her fluttering question.

"I rode in here on my way back from the station, not caring to meet all the good people going to church. I felt like an outcast."

"I, too, am a recreant today. It is the first time I have missed service in a long while. Mamma felt too unstrung to come, and I had given up the idea, but both she and Aunt Grace urged me. I was too late for the omnibus and walked up, and then I would not go in because service was begun, and I wanted to be home again before noon. I cannot bear to be late at church or to leave it until everything is over, but I can't be away from mother so long today. Shall we walk that way now?"

"In a minute, I must find my horse. He is up here somewhere. Tell me how the colonel is feeling and Mrs. Maynard."

"Both very nervous and worried, though I see nothing extraordinary in the adventure. We read of poor hungry tramps everywhere, and they rarely do harm."

"I wonder a little at your venturing here in the wood paths after what occurred last night."

"Why, Captain Armistage, no one would harm me here, so close to the church. Indeed I never thought of such a thing until you mentioned it. Did you discover anything about the man?"

"Nothing definite, but I must be at the station again to meet the up train and have to see the colonel meantime. Let me find Dobbin, or whatever they call this venerable relic I'm riding, and then I'll escort you home."

But Dobbin had strayed deeper into the wood. It was some minutes before the captain could find and catch him. The rich melody of sacred music was again thrilling through the perfumed woods, the glad sunshine was pouring its warmth and blessing over all the earth, glinting on bluff and brake and palisaded cliff, the birds were all singing their rivaling psaltery, and nature seemed pouring forth its homage to the Creator and Preserver of all on this holy day, when Frank Armistage once more reached the bowered lane where, fairest, sweetest sight of all, his lady stood waiting him. She turned to him as she heard the hoof beat on the turf and smiled.

"Can we wait and hear that hymn through?"

"Aye, sing it."

She looked suddenly in his face. Something in the very tone in which he spoke startled her—something deeper, more fervent, than she had ever heard before—and the expression in the steady, deep blue eyes was another revelation. Alice Renwick was a woman's intuition, and yet she had not known this man a day. The color again mounted to her temples, and her eyes fell after one quick glance.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Born to Mr. and Mrs. John Vaughn—a son.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Oney Culbertson, Lincoln avenue—a daughter.

Mrs. Catharine E. Ryan has removed from New Brighton, Pa., to this city.

The household goods of J. S. Whan have arrived from Pittsburg and the family will reside here.

John Dittmer's household goods arrived yesterday from Cincinnati. The family has been here for some time.

Peter Cann's household goods arrived yesterday from Leetonia, the family having decided to take up residence here.

A German convention at Pittsburg today attracted about a dozen from this city this morning, excursion tickets to that number being sold.

Committees of the Junior Mechanics and Daughters of America met last night to arrange for the convention of the latter order on Monday and Tuesday next. Everything is now in readiness for the visitors.

Rev. Dr. Davis, the new president of the female seminary at Steubenville, was in the city yesterday looking after pupils who will enter the school. Doctor Davis is well and favorably known here, and has many friends in this section.

Only four of the local employees of the Cleveland & Pittsburg railroad attended the picnic at Brady lake today. Watchman J. B. Williams and John Montigny, Section Foreman Dennis Hickey and Telegraph Messenger James Pickering. The attendance of outsiders numbered 20 from here.

The local officials of the Bridgewater Gas company do not fear a scarcity of gas this winter, as the meter system is being used by a majority of consumers and will be in use by all before cold weather comes. The economy practiced already by those who have meters is proof of the fact that there will be no waste of the aeriform fluid this winter.

By a glance at today's issue it can be seen how the population is increasing in the line of removals from other towns to this city. Since the strike was declared off at least fifty families have located here, many of them newcomers, and this number is exclusive of those departing. Others have announced their intention of locating in East Liverpool.

An accident occurred at the Hookstown fair Thursday which was exciting for a few moments. A horse driven around the track rapidly collided with another turnout and threw J. McBride out, severely injuring him. Had it not been for the shafts of the cart catching, the frightened horse would undoubtedly have trampled several people to death.

John Cisco went to the Hookstown fair yesterday when he was released from jail and succeeded in getting into a fight. He was not seriously injured, however, and managed to get $5. This he gave to Acting Mayor Manley last night as part payment of his fine, and left for Shippingport to raise enough money to get his companion, Annie Hogan, out of the coop.

City Engineer George was in Wellsville yesterday instructing those working on the city building as to the points of the compass in putting a large bronze eagle in position. The emblem is a beautiful one, three feet from tip to tip, and makes a magnificent emblem of freedom for the roof of the city building. Such an ornament would be useful as well as ornamental on our own city hall.

Two East Liverpool boys called on a couple of Wellsville young ladies one night recently and got themselves into a predicament. A neighbor keeps a fox and some chickens and the animal got after the fowls. It had killed several of the chickens when the young men heard the racket and entered the coop. Here the owner of the chickens found them, and it took a good deal of explaining to set things right.

Since the improvement began in business the matrimonial market has taken a sudden turn, and not a day passes without someone securing a license in Lisbon. Time was when whole weeks would go by and not a permit could be found on the books. Whether this sudden determination to wed on the part of so many is due to the pent up feelings of the year of hard times or is an epidemic, which comes as all other epidemics, you must decide for yourself.

A dispute between William Cleis and Mrs. Keturah Reynolds, a widow lady, over some fruit yesterday, resulted in Chief Gill arresting Cleis at the glass house yesterday evening on a charge of disorderly conduct. He appeared this morning, plead not guilty and Wednesday next at 2 o'clock was set for the time of hearing before Mayor Gilbert. Cleis gave security for his appearance and was released. The two families live in the same house in West End, and during the dispute the plaintiff alleges that the defendant used profane language and acted in a disorderly manner.

Democratic Convention.

A prominent Democrat said today that the party leaders here, which by the way includes almost all the members of the party, were going to make an event of the convention. The opera house will be decorated for the occasion, and there will be music there. Whether this is to be the discordant notes of the harmony that will develop he did not say, but what he meant was one of the city's excellent bands, although the other will be there also.

Kenneth Bazemore had the good fortune to receive a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This one small bottle cured them all and he had some left which he gave to Geo. W. Baker, a prominent merchant of the place, Lewiston, N. C., and it cured him of the same complaint. When troubled with dysentery, diarrhoea, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follows its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cents bottles for sale by A. H. Bulger, druggist.

Cheap Notoriety.

Sometime ago an item appeared in a Pittsburg paper about a great contest in East End, and the name of a certain young man was mentioned as the champion of the occasion. Later it transpired that he hadn't won a game and all his prizes were imaginary. Now some of the players are anxious to test the skill of this seeker for notoriety, and will accommodate him in a series of games for any amount of money he may choose to mention.

My boy was taken with a disease resembling bloody flux. The first thing I thought of was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy. Two doses of it settled the matter and cured him sound and well. I heartily recommend this remedy to all persons suffering from a like complaint. I will answer any inquiries regarding it when stamp is inclosed. I refer to any county official as to my reliability. Wm. Roach, J. P. Primoroy, Campbell Co., Tenn. For sale by A. H. Bulger, druggist.

An Item of Interest.

Those of our citizens who talk of starting an electric light plant should read the advertisement in our columns of stock for sale in Ceramic City Lighting company. This stock is offered at a bargain and is in an established company without a rival in business, and will certainly be a better investment than to put money in a new company. Call and see Mr. Purinton with reference to this stock.

"I know an old soldier who had chronic diarrhoea of long standing to have been permanently cured by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy," says Edward Shumpp, a prominent druggist of Minneapolis, Minn. "I have sold the remedy in this city for over seven years and consider it superior to any other medicine now on the market for bowel complaints." 25 and 50 cent bottles of this remedy for sale by A. H. Bulger, druggist.

Doubly Unfortunate.

West bound passenger train, No. 337, due here at 3:45 o'clock broke down above Smith's Ferry yesterday afternoon and was delayed over an hour. When it reached Wellsville a rod fell out of place and threw the engine off the rails. Another delay of several hours held back No. 338 until it was over an hour late upon arrival here.

A delightful trip for a lady who has a daughter whom she wishes to place in the best school she can find, is the trip to Gambier, O., the seat of Harcourt Place Seminary. Gambier is a most beautiful historic seat of learning, being the educational center of the Episcopal church in Ohio. Mr. H. N. Hills, of Gambier, can procure excursion tickets for you at a low rate.

A Child's Death.

The six-months-old child of Charles Sidrick died at the family residence in West End yesterday morning, and the funeral took place from the Catholic church this morning at 9 o'clock. The remains were buried in the Catholic cemetery. The mother of the child died shortly after its birth.

TWO POINTED FACTS.

Howard's Sensation Before the Strike Commission.

GOVERNMENT BLACKLISTING MEN.

The A. R. U. Official Cites the Fact of Union Pacific Receivers Boycotting Employees—Railroad Men Testify as to Being Blacklisted.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—Vice President Howard of the American Railway union created something of a sensation at the meeting of the government strike commission.

Mr. Howard said he desired to call the commission's attention to two facts: That the United States government was now blacklisting or boycotting 3,000 employees of the Union Pacific railroad because of their connection with the American Railway union, and that the railroads of the country were threatening to boycott the Missouri, Kansas and Texas road unless it withdrew its present low rate to Washington.

"We think that if the government can keep its hands off the railways and let them settle their differences by boycott or any way they please, it should keep its hands off the employees as well."

A burst of applause from the audience greeted this sentiment.

F. R. Mills, a Baltimore and Ohio engineer, of Garrett, Ind., was called and testified that he was discharged on July 1 and was told that he was not to be employed again. Since then he sent a letter to W. G. Brinson, president of the Illinois Steel company, asking for employment. After a few days Mr. Brinson replied that if the application had been received a week before he would have been glad to employ Mills, but that now he had been informed of Mills' prominence in the American Railway union and therefore could not employ him.

James B. Connors, a switchman who had worked on the Grand Trunk road, testified that he had made application for work to the Union Stockyards and Transit company and was refused. The official to whom he applied told him that no man who had ever served on labor committees would be given employment.

Charles Naylor, fireman and engineer, and member of the American Railway union, came next. He was dismissed June 28 from the Pennsylvania lines and knew that he was blacklisted because a general superintendent had told a friend of the witness that he could not get work.

Prof. E. W. Bemis, associate professor of political economy in Chicago university, was also a witness. He advocated as a strike preventative, a national and permanent board of arbitration. Prof. Bemis cited the Massachusetts board of cancellation as an evidence of the good effect that such an organization would have, but said that a national arbitration board should have a wider scope and be endowed with greater powers than the Massachusetts board. Prof. Bemis said he had studied the great railroad strike and its causes and he was very closely questioned by the commissioners.
